NEW YORK, January 21st -The Herald's Savannah correspondent says that Sherman had his preparations for a new movement nearly

The 17th corps, under Gen. Blair, and Gen. Hatch's division of Foster's army were in secure possession of the important position of Pocatoligo bridge. The 15th corps was expected to inforcements arrived in that city.

Gen. Sherman had issued an order giving notice to the farmers that they may visit Savannah, Ga., and Fernandina and Jacksonville to exchange their produce for supplies needed by their families, and guaranteeing them protection in case of molestation. He also encourages the people to meet together and take measures for the restoration of the state and national civil government during his stay in Savannah. Secretary Stanton has promoted a number officers who have distinguished themselves, including Kilpatrick, who was brevetted a major Mr. Draper was superintending the shipment of the captured cotton. Several vessels were already loaded. When a sufficient number were in readiness they would be dispatched north-

Two or three unsuccessful attempts had been made to destroy the immense stores of the valuable staple. President Lincoln has issued an order opening the Savannah' postoffice for regular mail busi-

The Herald's Nassau correspondent of the 16th says the utmost activity prevails in the Anglo-rebel blockade running fleet plying be tween Wilmington, Charleston and Nassau. Cotton valued at $350,000 had been landed at Nassau from the above named southern ports within ten days. A large number of British trading vessels had sailed from Liverpool and London to the Clyde, laden with supplies for the rebel blockade run-

The Richmond Whig of the 18th publishes an important letter from Jeff, Davis in reply to letters from sentors from New York, in which they took grounds against the resolutions introduced n the rebel House in favor of reconstruction. Davis argues that a convention of the states is part of individual states tend only to the crea tion of discord in the confederacy. He says that the only plan by which peace can be obtained is provided for in the rebel constitution. He does not say what the plan is, but proceeds at length ts show that all propositions looking to conventions and negotiations are futile ; that the United States will not negotiate; that they will not accept a surrender, which the rebel states cannot and will not grant.

The World's Port Royal correspondent of the 17th says: Sherman's grand army will be on the move. and we will soon hear of the stars and stripes floating over more conquered rebel cities.

A brother of Gen. Hardee, and others, have made a claim to the cotton in Savannah. Gen. by nearly an unanimous vote, the fourth, Sherman gave them a written reply, in which he for the liabilities of the Bank, the Stockholders are indi- said the cotton ought to go into the hands of the general government, which he said could never be indemnified for the blood and tressure derived from the people, all the governmet of required to regain possession of Savannah. This was his opinion; still they might go to Washing ton and make effort to have the decision reversed.

The Times' Savannah correspondent has the following: At this writing the left wing of Sherman's army is moving from Savannah on a line which state the enemy may ascertain for himself.

It is thought the rebels will make a stand 30 a permenent allegiance to the constitution to the miles south of Charleston, and then fail back on government of the United States, and no law that city. By the George Cromwell, from New Orleans cate rebel property to the state of Missouri. on the 14th, we learn that on the 7th the transport John Raine collided with the John H Decky, from White river, bound for New Oc leans, having on board the 161st New York and a portion of the 20th lows volunteers, with a number of horses and mules. Three of the 20th Iowa were wounded, names not given

The Indianola, our first heavy iron-clad on the Mississippi, has been raised and towed to New Orleans. She will be repaired The steamer Venango had been captured and burned by guerrillas at Pitcher's Point After robbing the boat of $60,000 in green-backs they took the captain, crew and passengers ashore as prisoners, and burned the boat The Venango had 100 bales of cotton. It is reported that Gen. Decastgur had taken possession of Durango, Mexico. Marquaiz had boarding, and other manufactured lumber pertaining to taken Colina and Ortiga, losing all his infantry and artillery. Carvajal is said to be trying to get across the Rio Grande into Texas. Letters from Collector Draper, at Savannah, states that a number of vessels are being loaded with cotton for this city, and would soon sail. No account has been taken of the amount of cot top, but it is believed it has been understated. It is estimated that it will require twenty vessels to bring it to this city. Many enterprising traders who shipped corgoes
